Cops expand school officers program to third division

Kindergarten Cop, eat your heart out. Most of the bill being footed by St. James-Assiniboia

BERNICE PONTANILLA

bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

A third school division in Winnipeg will see police officers working alongside educators in the hallways and classrooms.

On Thursday, officials with the St. James-Assiniboia School Division announced it has become the third division to participate in the School Resource Officers program.

"The fact that you have a police officer within the school, on the school grounds, over time the students become comfortable with that," said vice-chair of trustees Craig McGregor. "They look to the officer for advice. ... It helps to grow that respect for the law."

Staff Sgt. Andy Golebioski of the community-relations unit said the program has been very successful.

Review irks councillor

The Manitoba government, which funds one-third of the program in the Winnipeg School and Pembina Trails, has said the program is under review, opening up the possibility it may end next year.

- Coun. Scott Fielding said kiboshing the program would be shortsighted: "If you don't have that partnership ... if the province is refusing to contribute money towards it, it makes it harder for School Resource Officers in future divisions to happen."

"It helps us do a better job right across the board, not just when we think about crime or youth crime issues, but social development as a whole," he said.

The St. James-Assiniboia Division is footing two-thirds of the bill, which McGregor estimated at $80,000, with the city providing in-kind contributions for its one-third.

Staff Sgt. Andy Golebioski said the program helps build relationships with youth. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Winnipeggers craft skeeter-dodging app

A new app shows where bug levels are at their worst. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

A team of computer-engineering students from the University of Manitoba have developed a smartphone app to help stop the slap.

The mosquito slap, that is. The app, called M Tracker, allows users to enter the level of mosquito infestation wherever they happen to be, and that data is uploaded to a map that other users can check before heading out.

"People will know whether or not to bring bug spray or whether they're going to need a whole lot of bug spray," said Rory Jacob, who helped develop the software. "It's very simple.... There's just four levels: it basically goes from no mosquitoes to a lot of mosquitoes, and it works anywhere in the world."

The idea came from similar software developed several years ago that monitors and models the spread of flu and flu-like symptoms in hospitals. Coming from Winnipeg, Jacob said it didn't take long to realize the same technology would work for tracking buzzing bloodsuckers.

"We saw a large problem and we tried to do something about it," he said.

The free app went live for iPhone and Android phones last week, and so far about 200 users have downloaded it. Jacob said the data will only get more accurate and be available for more locations as more people start using it.

Park gets jolly ol' double decker

All aboard. Authentic London double decker to offer 'jump-on, jump-off' service

Assiniboine Park is doubling the fun for park-goers this summer with its latest acquisition — a 1967 Roadmaster double decker bus — and the iconic people-mover took its first spin around the grounds Thursday.

Dubbed the Domo Double Decker, the authentic London 72-seat bus was donated to the Assiniboine Park Conservancy (APC) by Senator Douglas Everett and his family, and it will be giving free lifts to visitors to the park seven days a week all summer long.

"This is a great thing, it allows people to come and spend some hours at the zoo and then come into the main part of the park and do something else in a day," said Margaret Redmond, president and CEO of the APC.

"And the bus itself is also just a really fun activity. It's going to be just another reason to come to the park."

The bus had previously been in service running through the streets of London before being taken out of service and brought over the pond by the Everett family in 2005. As well as donating the bus to the park, the family has also given the park $100,000 to cover operational expenses.

Stops along the route include the conservatory, the pavilion, the bridge over to Portage Avenue, the English Garden, the East Gate parking lot and, of course, the zoo.

The bus will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day in July and August starting Saturday before slowing down to just weekends until Thanksgiving. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

Peer's hair set on fire

Sentencing delayed for teen

Sentencing has been delayed for a Winnipeg teen who tried to light the hair of a Jewish classmate on fire.

Judge Tim Preston ordered a forensic psychiatrist report before proceeding with sentencing.

It could take four to six weeks before the report is ready.

The 17-year-old boy, who can't be named, was charged with assault with a weapon.

The teen uttered anti-Semitic remarks before using a lighter to burn the hair of a 15-year-old Jewish classmate in the hallway of their high school.

The girl was not physically hurt during the attack — which took place in November 2011 — and returned to school. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Peg police need safe parking: Havixbeck

Preventative. Councillor says she hears almost on a weekly basis of incidents against city police officers

bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

Winnipeg's police officers deserve safe and affordable parking when they move into their new headquarters near the Millennium Library, said Coun. Paula Havixbeck.

The representative of Charleswood-Tuxedo brought up her concerns to Coun. Russ Wyatt (Transcona), who is chair of the city's finance committee, during Wednesday's council meeting.

"Our police officers put their lives on the line for us every single day, they never know what they're going to experience when they go out," said Havixbeck just before a press conference at Sturgeon Heights Collegiate on Thursday.

"When officers are dealing with gangs, in particular, or anybody who is unhappy with what they're trying to find or trying to do, then I think it's essential that they have a secure parking spot that they come back to their car to, that they're not being followed."

Havixbeck said she hears almost on a weekly basis of incidents with officers, though she doesn't have hard numbers to offer when it comes to assaults, just anecdotal evidence from individual officers and the Winnipeg Police Association.

She also believes the closure of the Civic Parkade just west of city hall has made it more dangerous for officers.

Wyatt said he would be looking into the matter.

Sometimes the right choice is obvious.

Mandela's condition improves

Nelson Mandela's health improved overnight Wednesday, and although his condition remains critical, it is now stable, the South African government said Thursday.

One of the former president's daughters said he is still opening his eyes and reacting to the touch of his family even though his situation is precarious.

The report that the health of the 94-year-old anti-apartheid leader had taken a turn for the better came amid a growing sense in South Africa that Mandela was approaching the end of his life.

Well-wishers have delivered flowers and messages of support to the Pretoria hospital where he is being treated, and prayer sessions were held around the country on Thursday.

Hashimi had been charged with first-degree murder. Smith's sister and mother said outside court that though the plea to lesser charges wasn't the outcome they had expected, they can now move on.

Smith's sister, Kamelia Taylor, lashed out at a throng of reporters, saying it was "disgusting" that no one cared about her brother's death until a picture emerged appearing to show him with the mayor.

Calgary mayor blasts CP Rail after bridge fails over river

'Looking for a lot of answers.' Mayor Naheed Nenshi and CP CEO Hunter Harrison agree to work more on safety together in the future

Calgary's mayor says Canadian Pacific Railway has apologized for the chaos caused by a train that derailed after a bridge over the swollen Bow River failed.

Naheed Nenshi says he's had a conversation with CP CEO Hunter Harrison and they both agreed to work together more on safety.

Nenshi lashed out at CP earlier in the day, suggesting the company did a poor job inspecting its bridge after a recent flooding.

"How is it we don't have regulatory authority over this, but it's my guys down there risking their lives to fix it?" Nenshi asked earlier Thursday.

"Certainly once this crisis is over, I'll be looking for a lot of answers from a lot of people. When was that bridge inspected? Why was it not inspected after Saturday? Remember, on Saturday the Bow River was still running higher than anyone had ever seen in their lifetimes," Nenshi said.

"I'll be very blunt. I'll probably get in trouble for saying this," Nenshi added. "We've seen a lot of people lose their jobs at CP over the last year. How many bridge inspectors did they fire?"

Harrison said several inspections were done on the bridge, adding that the structure was checked five times after floodwaters rose, but piers at the bottom of the river failed.

He says divers would normally have been sent down to look at the bottom of the bridge, but the water was too murky and swift to do that safely.

He said the bridge's failure is as "extraordinary" as the heavy rains and flooding in southern Alberta.

Revolution 2.0 for Egypt?

Egyptians watch President Mohammed Morsi's televised speech at a bar in Cairo, Wednesday. All eyes are on Egypt as the country is set once again for massive protests, expected on Sunday. MANU BRABO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A nation in a state of agitation. Unrest in Egypt could reach a tipping point Sunday, the 1-year anniversary of Brotherhood rule

deena.douara@metronews.ca

Two days after I arrive in Cairo to see family earlier this month, my uncle whisks me away to a protest at the Ministry of Culture.

That's Egypt today, protests have become a family affair. With this weekend marking the one-year anniversary of the Muslim Brotherhood taking power, you worry about the safety of loved ones.

This particular protest on June 11 turns out to be a shi-shi demonstration in a wealthy Cairo neighbourhood. President Mohammed Morsi has replaced the culture minister and others with Muslim Brotherhood members. Many criticize the changes as crude and corrupt, though others suggest he must excise old officials to begin anew.

I lived in Egypt for five years until 2009, and visited again months after the 2011 revolution. It was a time of uncertainty and insecurity, but also of some optimism and rebuild-

Quoted

"Before, people protested on Fridays. Now it's Sunday, Tuesday, Saturday, Monday; doctors, teachers, judges, those protesting the lack of gas, water, employment, those cut off from their land and whose salaries have been cut. Every day there's something."

Samia Aly, Deena Douara's aunt, who plans to protest for as long as it takes to get rid of Morsi.

ing. That has all but vanished.

The one-year anniversary is Sunday. Protests have already begun and bloodshed is expected. People are asking if we'll become like Syria? Could Salafis win an election? What of the plummeting economy and security?

On a stage outside the ministry, a Tahrir Square protest singer performs a call-and-response song. Artists and intellectuals dot the crowd.

Individuals stand between cars with petitions calling for early elections and people honk in support.

The next day, I eye a young man in the women's-only metro car with suspicion. After other vendors pass, he rallies the women to demonstrate on the 30th. There will be bussing to three sites and if they can't go, then protest in front of your home, he insists. "Don't be afraid," he yells, repeatedly. A woman tells the rest to say "Amen."

Another woman confronts him, telling him that we all know where his support really comes from. Other passengers are pragmatic. "We have to give (Morsi) time, we need stability."

Days later, on the metro again, a woman calls for signatures. "Everyone's signed by now," a passenger tells her. Arguments erupt across the evening car.

I was with a friend when a stylish young woman said she wouldn't sign — she and her husband work in tourism and just as things are getting to normal, protests threaten their livelihoods.

I walk with a friend the next day around Old Cairo. An older man mutters to nobody that Morsi will be good for the country so there will be fewer people like us around. Tourists? Women? Women without a headscarf? Only the disdain is understood.

When I take a cab home with a woman already inside, it's clear they've been discussing politics. The driver asks if I've signed the petition. I hesitate and they wonder aloud if perhaps my father is Brotherhood. He is not. Later when I jot in my notepad, he half-jokingly suspects I'm recording their information.

The woman doesn't know whether to blame Morsi or the revolution for unemployment that's driven young neighbours to drug addiction. The driver, too, had lost his job as a government staffer. When she says the old regime was better, the driver disagrees: he says the 30th had better not mean bringing back the old.

In my last days I visit conservative relatives and wonder whether they support the Brotherhood. I learn they don't — my cousin thinks Morsi is incompetent, idiotic, and deceitful (the most common criticism against the Brotherhood). But he thinks things could get much worse. The opposition have no plan, no candidate. Blood will be shed, and for what? He fears that old regime sympathizers or paid thugs will be among protesters, even posing as Brotherhood, to incite violence.

I leave Egypt confused. And worried. I have family members on the front lines. Relatives have lost everything in the plunging economy and once-proud Egyptians are witnessing the decline of their country as it's torn along religious and sectarian lines.

And I wait to see what will become of Egypt's second — perhaps — revolution in my lifetime.

CRTC gives green light to Astral deal

Second time around.

Bell's revised takeover bid approved after firm promises to sell some specialty TV channels and radio stations

Canada's communications regulator cleared the way for the country's newest telecom colossus on Thursday, approving Bell's retooled $3.4-billion bid for Astral Media and its coveted TV specialty channels and radio stations.

Bell's original bid for Astral was rejected by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission last fall on the grounds that it wasn't in the best interests of Canadians.

Eiffel Tower reopens following 2-day strike

The Eiffel Tower in Paris has reopened after a rare two-day workers' strike. The union representing most of the Eiffel Tower's 300 workers called the walkout on Tuesday during negotiations this week over salary raises, the company profit-sharing policy and other issues. The 124-year-old tower gets about 25,000 tourists daily — such as the couple seen in this photo on a rainy day this past May. Though it is scheduled to be open every day, it occasionally closes because of suicide threats, bomb threats — or strikes. FRED DUFOUR/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

Rona to close 11 stores in Ontario, B.C.

Rona plans to close 11 of its money-losing stores in two provinces, as well as cut more administrative jobs and trim its marketing budget in an effort to boost its financial results.

After years of efforts to address eroding profits, newly installed CEO Robert Sawyer said his restructuring plan creates a simplified business structure and a more agile company, and it should be the last cost-cutting exercise needed to turn the company around.

"It's enough of a restructuring," he said Thursday. "Going forward, we're there to do business. We're there to increase our sales and we're there to give satisfaction to customers."

Sawyer said his plan is based on a tough economy that doesn't show much improvement. The executive said he will use his experience in the grocery business to revamp Rona's flyers and offer attractive discounts to lure customers to the stores. THE CANADIAN PRESS

LIES YOUR MOTHER TOLD YOU

1 Oh Canada (Say whaa?). CBC Music wanted to spice up our country's national anthem for Canada Day, so they recruited domestic beat boxer KRNFx, national vocal treasure Maiko Watson, and seasoned producer Ian Blackwood. The result is a righteous hip-hop groove for young Liberals and New Democrats alike. Check them out on YouTube, yo! One time (one time).

2 Smart screen. Research from the University of London ends a tradition of lies parents perpetuated about the harmful effects of TV. The study revealed that kids who watched more did better in school than their more moderate-viewing counterparts. Subsequent studies also showed that your dog likely did not retire to a ranch, your face will not stay like that, and no matter how many times you do it, you will not go blind!

At 22 years old, Jordan Ozuna has been separated almost as long as she was married, but she is still married, according to her estranged mother-in-law. Yet, she fools around with Biebs.

5 Growing up Kardashian. Despite endowing their child with the moniker of North West, sources close to the couple say that Kim and Kanye are wonderful parents. Kim says she enjoys being a mother. Sure, it's tough, waking up in the middle of the day, supervising the nanny, looking out for possible allergies to fruits or nuts, or unnatural fabrics, but as long as she can hold her baby, for just a few minutes before each mani-pedi, it's all worth it.

6 C'est la Vie. This week in 1974, French crooner Charles Aznavour hit No. 1 in the U.K. with She. At 50, he was the oldest 7 The Iron Sheik. Old-school wrestling fans will remember Hulk Hogan's notorious nemesis. Hossein Khosrow Vaziri, former Olympic wrestler and bodyguard for the Shah of Iran, has an incredible story. Persian-Canadian brothers Jian and Page, a.k.a. The Magen Boys, have been gathering footage for years and a powerful film has emerged. 8 Busting balls. This week, the now-former New England Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez was charged with first-degree murder, and Cleveland Browns rookie Ausar Walcott was charged with attempted murder, making a grand total of 36 NFL players to be arrested this year. League officials are up in arms about the allegations, but I think the problem is obvious. Cops just prefer basketball.

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Been there, bombed that

White House Down. The Jamie Foxx flick isn't your typical blow 'em up blockbuster but it doesn't do much to set itself apart either

Richard: Mark, unlike the virtually identical Olympus Has Fallen, the Gerard Butler White House disaster flick that opened earlier this year, White House Down spends half-an-hour of its sprawling 137 minutes introducing the characters, which is 29 minutes more than we got in Butler's film. There's loads and loads of not terribly interesting talking, then the dome blows off the White House and director Roland Emmerich's genius for making things go boom comes into play. From that point on, it's fun stuff.

Mark: And the question becomes which is the better flick? White House Down has bigger stars, more expensive production and more action than Olympus Has Fallen. But if we use plausibility as a guideline, I think Olympus has a bit of an edge. That film almost felt like an indie, and its relative cheapness worked for it. I'm not saying that White House Down isn't fun, but there were lots of times I just didn't believe it, starting with the idea that Jamie Foxx could be elected president. On the other hand, James Woods is very believable. Too believable, maybe.

RC: Woods does disgruntled very well. I won't say any more about Woods — there will be no spoilers here — but I can say that this is a talkier-than-usual action movie. But by and large the chit chat is entertaining. Best line in the movie? "That's President Sawyer, and he has a rocket launcher!" I loved that the cheese factor was ramped up to 11 for the last hour-and-a-half.

MB: Yes, I enjoyed that too. And there's a bit of comedy thrown in. Nicolas Wright is terrific as a White House guide with SNL timing. But the director, Roland Emmerich, may have some explaining to do. This is the second time he's blown up the White House (Independence Day being the first), and I'm no Freudian, but as a foreign national he may be receiving a visit from some Homeland Security in the near future.

RC: He's the master of disaster! He's never met a monument he didn't want to destroy. Whether it be bad weather à la The Day After Tomorrow or a worldwide cataclysm as in his global warming epic 2012, the director can't seem to stop himself from trashing beloved landmarks.

MB: I just heard there's a Canadian version of this film being produced where terrorists take over 24 Sussex Dr. and get into a bitter debate with the government over who pays the utility bills.

Starring in a Johnny Depp movie

Armie Hammer. Actor talks about cracking wise and his role in the Lone Ranger

NED
Metro World News in Hollywood

Armie Hammer doesn't have a future as a stand-up comic. Just minutes before I sit down for a chat with the Lone Ranger star, he attempted a joke in front of a packed press conference, Johnny Depp by his side. It did not go well.

"What do you call 64 Cherokee in a room?" he asked, interrupting Depp. "Full blood!" His punchline, unfortunately, was met with a frosty, confused silence. "That was told to me by a Comanche, so it's a safe joke," he offered.

So after that, I have to ask what your unsafe jokes are like.

Oh, no, no. I'm afraid I'm already going to get in enough trouble probably for that safe joke.

Armie Hammer, left, in the Lone Ranger. HANDOUT

Did that feel like it didn't quite go over well?
I think it went over as best as could be expected. It's a cold room.

You're the title character here, but this is very much a Johnny Depp movie. Is there any ego-checking you need to do to get used to that idea?

He's been involved in this movie since 2006. I mean, if I actually went into it with the idea of, "I'm playing the Lone Ranger, this is my movie," then I probably would've had to go through some kind of process, but I was just happy to be there working. Even if they'd just been like, "You only have to work 50 days on this movie" — which I definitely didn't have to do, I had to work a s—load, but it was great, every minute of it.

You've got your classic western hero, plus you've done the all-American G-man in J. Edgar, the Harvard twins in the Social Network and Prince Charming in Mirror, Mirror. Are you worried at all about typecasting?

Not really. I think that's just how people see me, which is fine. I mean, I'm not complaining by any means. It looks like I've been doing OK with it in terms of getting jobs. I'm not worried about getting typecast because I don't really think about types when I choose a movie. For me it's just more important about who's involved.

All about the chemistry

Meeting Armie Hammer, it's very, very hard not to like him. The man is charming, polite and intensely good-natured. Coincidentally, that's exactly how he feels about his Lone Ranger co-star, Johnny Depp. And it's those shared traits that create the chemistry between the Lone Ranger and Tonto necessary for the film to work. "I would say that it's 90 per cent just that we're both generally agreeable people and 10 per cent that almost everyone else that you deal with in this business sucks," Hammer says. "You can smell that s— when someone's working with someone they don't actually like."

Are there roles that are more against type for you that you've been dying to play?

I'm sure I could do that actor masturbatory thing of, "I'd love to get face tattoos and shave my head." I don't know, I'll take whatever job has a great director and a great script.

Johnny Depp, left, as Tonto in the Lone Ranger. HANDOUT

He's not a savage and you're not in India

NED
Metro World News in Hollywood

The Lone Ranger may be the biggest western to come out of Hollywood in years, but it's not star Johnny Depp's first venture into the frontier.

In 1995, Depp starred as an out-of-his-depths city slicker in Jim Jarmusch's Dead Man — not that he's seen it. "I feel somehow that Jim Jarmusch made a great and amazing sort of epic poem of a western with Dead Man," Depp says. "Haven't seen the film, but I love Jim, and I know what he's capable of, and from what I've heard, it's — and I did read the script by the way, and it was — it was wonderful."

Now, about that Lone Ranger. In taking on the iconic character of Tonto in such an iconic property, Depp — who spearheaded and executive-produced the project — saw the Lone Ranger as a chance to reverse a lot of Hollywood's past mistakes. "In the history of cinema, the Native American has been portrayed as a savage

Kooky characters

Tonto versus Captain Jack

Tonto is another addition to Johnny Depp's coterie of kooky characters, including the Mad Hatter, Hunter S. Thompson and Edward Scissorhands. But perhaps the Grand Poobah of Depp's alter egos is Pirates of the Caribbean mainstay Captain Jack Sparrow. So between the rakish pirate and the wily Comanche warrior, who would win in a fight?

"It's over for Tonto," Depp says with a weary shake of his head. "Yeah, it's over for Tonto. Captain Jack is far too dark. It wouldn't take long and it would be unpleasant."

or as something lesser than. And it was important to me to at least take a good shot at erasing that," he says.

On a more personal level, there's also the way Tonto himself — the Lone Ranger's stoic sidekick — had been portrayed. "As a very young child, I was always perturbed by the idea of Tonto being a sidekick. That just didn't register properly in my head," Depp explains. "I just thought it was potentially an opportunity to right the wrong, you know?"

And it's not just Hollywood's treatment of Native Americans that needs addressing, Depp insists. There are centuries of injustice and stereotypes he hopes his flashy summer blockbuster can help diminish. "I wanted to convey that the Native Americans were only deemed savages when Christopher Columbus hit the wrong f—ing place, and decided that he'd hit India," Depp says. "That's our history. He thought he hit India, and called the people Indians. That's our history, you know? I mean, that's pretty f—ing weird, seriously."

Comic actress back 'on' in sequel

Despicable Me 2.

Kristen Wiig talks about being shy off the clock, and missing Saturday Night Live

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Kristen Wiig is trying to deal with the fact that she's always expected to be 'on.'

The comic actress and Saturday Night Live vet has made a name for herself with outlandish characters and hilarious writing, but she's actually quite shy and reserved when she's not on the clock. Unfortunately, when promoting a massive animated film like Despicable Me 2, that's not very often.

"I mean, in an interview situation I am aware that I'm being recorded and written about, so there's a kind of a persona you have to bring out a little bit," she admits. "I find that people who interview me expect probably more of a comedic personality than in real life."

Wrestling with those perceptions has perhaps gotten easier now that she's left SNL, where she became a stand-out over seven seasons with crazy characters like the Target Lady. She even enjoyed a touching kind of send-off — with each cast member and creator Lorne Michaels dancing with her during a final sketch — most other retiring SNL actors don't enjoy.

With a year's time now between Wiig and her tearful farewell from SNL, she admits she's finally getting used to not being on the sketch comedy mainstay.

"I do miss it," she admits. "It's getting easier now because they're on (summer) hiatus. I don't imagine what they're doing — not in a creepy way, but just ... it was such a big part of my life for seven years and it was a transition to leave. But it's getting better."

For her new addition to the Despicable Me world, Wiig was given some touchstones from one of her famous pre-

Gru (Steve Carell) attempts to understand his new partner, Lucy (Kristen Wiig), in Despicable Me 2, summer 2013's much-anticipated followup to Universal Pictures and Illumination Entertainment's blockbuster comedy adventure Despicable Me. HANDOUT decessors to work with: She plays Lucy, a brassy, clumsy redhead — who reminds viewers more than a little of Lucille Ball — tasked with roping retired super-villain Gru (Steve Carell) into a mission. "That's all they gave me. 'Her name is Lucy, she has red hair, go!'" Wiig says with a laugh. "I had never played a character like that before that was so enthusiastic, I guess. She's very excited."

Lucy is also fairly fearless, a trait Wiig humbly declines to apply to herself. "Um ... no," she laughs. "I don't know, in some ways, I guess. But I don't think anyone is 100 per cent fearless."

All the laughs

What makes Kristen funny

Through her time on Saturday Night Live and her jump to film with projects like Bridesmaids, Kristen Wiig has earned a legion of fans for her unique brand of humour. But just what is it that makes her so entertaining? Despicable Me 2 co-star Steve Carell breaks it down for us.

"Kristen to me is funny, and not to deconstruct Kristen's comedy, but she to me is really funny because you never see her trying to be funny," he says. "I think we're very similar in a sense that at a party or social situations we're not necessarily the funniest people in the room. It's just the two of us huddled in the corner whispering, 'How's it going?'"

Director. Paul Feig

Stars. Sandra Bullock, Melissa McCarthy

Sarah Ashburn (Oscar winner Sandra Bullock) is an uptight FBI agent teamed with tough-talking Boston street cop Shannon Mullins (Melissa McCarthy) to bring down a murderous drug dealer. This odd couple, buddy cop dynamic is as old as the movies, so you'd hope for the performances to breathe new life into the film's withered lungs. Instead we get the same old from two good performers. With a gag to giggle ratio of about five-to-one, more jokes miss than hit. McCarthy tries hard to raise a smile but she doesn't do anything here we haven't seen her do before and better.

RICHARD CROUSE

I have considered lots of times that after age 50, I will be retired as an actor; I have the idea that it is the moment to make more projects as a director or producer. And I have a rather large family—my children are becoming teenagers but yeah, I also want to tell other types of stories on the screen."

Did Bieber bust out some black belt moves in 2012?

Justin Bieber GETTY IMAGES

As if he didn't have enough current trouble dogging him, Justin Bieber's past is now coming back to haunt him. The singer is being sued for assault by a paparazzo over a May 2012 scuffle outside a Cala-basas, Calif., shopping centre, according to TMZ. The photographer, Jose Hernandez Duran, claims that Bieber "physically attacked" him, leaping out of his car and hitting him with "a martial-arts-style kick" to Duran's midsection. The suit alleges that Bieber's then-girlfriend, Selena Gomez, put a stop to the incident and later apologized to Duran, saying, "I'm sorry, I don't know why he did that."

Kate having a royal blast as belly grows bigger

With less than two weeks until the royal due date, Kate Middleton is "really enjoying her final weeks of pregnancy," a source close to the Duchess of Cambridge tells Us Weekly. "Kate finds pregnancy fascinating. She still says, 'I can't believe it' when you talk about a baby being tucked inside of her." Middleton is currently hunkering down in Wales near Prince William's Royal Air Force post, but an emergency plan is reportedly in place to fly her via helicopter to London should she go into labour before her July 11 due date.

Do I hear a wedding, Bell?

Dax Shepard and Kristen Bell GETTY IMAGES

Though they've been engaged for more than two years, Kristen Bell and Dax Shepard have made it clear that they had no plans to wed while their gay and lesbian friends couldn't, but with California's Proposition 8 dead and the federal Defense of Marriage Act ruled unconstitutional it looks like it's time to set a date. "They have been waiting for this day so they can officially wed," a rep for the couple tells E! News. "They are beyond thrilled for their friends in the gay community."

Family, friends and fans bid final ciao to Sopranos star

PAT HEALY

Metro World News

Jamie Lynn-Sigler, who played Tony's daughter Meadow on The Sopranos, sobbed in front of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine in New York City on Thursday morning at the funeral of James Gandolfini.

The New York Times reports that almost the entire cast of The Sopranos was there, including Edie Falco, Joe Pantoliano, Dominic Chianese, Steve Schirripa, Aida Turturro, Vincent Curatola and Michael Imperioli.

New Jersey Governor

Chris Christie, Hilaria and Alec Baldwin, John Turturro, and David Chase were also on hand to say goodbye to the famed actor.

In a somewhat unheard of move, the public was also allowed to attend. The Times reports that two lines formed before the service: One for those who knew Gandolfini personally and one for those who didn't.

One of those waiting in that line was fan Gwen Gibbs, who drove from Kentucky to give her respects.

"I am not sure how to put it in words," she says. "He made the character of Tony Soprano feel like a real person, like someone you knew. When I heard he had died I hoped it was a hoax."

Hey, Canada, this is your long weekend. The one where you celebrate our great country with family, friends and grilled goodness.

Since this coming Monday is all about national pride, you all need to step up and fill your glass with some home-grown liquid.

It could be beer (there's a sea of amazing craft brews out there), it could be a spirit (think one of our classic Canadian whiskies) or, of course, a local wine.

Selection of our wines varies across the country. While there are some big national brands, the industry is really led by artisan winemakers producing smaller quantities of pretty fantastic juice that doesn't flow far from home.

Ontario's Henry of Pelham Winery has been an advocate for quality Canuck vino since the mid-'80s. Its 2011 Sibling Rivalry White ($12.95 to $16.99) is an irreverent New World wonder made from a blend of riesling, chardonnay and gewürztraminer.

The trio conspires to create an aromatic mix of fruit cocktail, citrus and subtle spice that rolls across the palate and makes for both an open-minded food partner and refreshing cocktail wine.

Canada, keep your meat tangy this long weekend

Chicken drumettes are the thick meaty part of the wing; they almost look like a mini leg. Here, they star in a delicious Herb and Spice Marinated Barbecue Chicken Drumettes dish.

Chef Richard Julien added 10 per cent cream to the marinade to add moisture, which helps keep chicken from drying out on the grill. Serve with

Ingredients

- 16 chicken drumettes (about 750 g/1 1/2 lb)
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) 10 per cent half-and-half cream
- 1/2 small onion, peeled
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled
- 7.5-cm (3-inch) piece of ginger, peeled and minced
- Zest and juice of 1 lemon (about 45 ml/3 tbsp of juice)
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) fresh cilantro leaves
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter, melted
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) each Dijon mustard, liquid honey and apple cider vinegar
- 10 ml (2 tsp) each ground cumin and coriander
- 5 ml (1 tsp) each ground turmeric and cayenne an extra thick tangy sour cream dip.

1. Pull skin off chicken drumettes; place in 20-cm (8-inch) square glass baking dish or similar size stainless-steel pan.

2. In food processor, combine, cream, onion, garlic, ginger, lemon zest and juice, cilantro, butter, mustard, honey, vinegar, cumin, coriander, turmeric, cayenne, salt and pepper; process until smooth. Pour marinade over chicken; cover and refrigerate for 2 hours to allow flavours to develop.

3. Heat grill to medium-high. Remove chicken from marinade and place on baking sheet lined with paper towels. Place chicken pieces on greased grill; reduce temperature to medium-low. Grill with lid down for 9 minutes, turn chicken over, close lid and grill for 8 minutes or until juices run clear from chicken when tested with a fork. CHEF RICHARD JULIEN OF CHEF LIVE! tions of Canadian facts that don't inspire much exploration.

But dig a little deeper and there are some useful apps to celebrate during the long weekend or bone up on some Canadiana.

The official apps

The Canada Day in the Capital app, available for Apple and Android devices and BlackBerrys, is a guide to the big festivities in Ottawa, which include an appearance by astronaut Chris Hadfield and performances by Carly Rae Jepsen, Metric and Terri Clark.

There are similar apps for public parties in Kanata, Ont., and Calgary. Given the flood recovery efforts in Calgary, official websites might be a better source of up-to-date information on public events still going forward.

Canadian history

The Canadian government has a free iPhone app exploring the history of the War of 1812, as does the PBS station WNET, which aired a TV documentary on the subject; (that app is also available for Android devices).

Renegade Arts Entertainment and the National Film Board of Canada partnered on a War of 1812 app (for Apple and Android devices) that tells the story of the years-long fight in graphic novel format.

The iPad app Canada 1812: Forged in Fire takes a similar approach by using comic-book-style storytelling to recreate the war's events.

The Laurier Centre for Military Strategic and Disarmament Studies also has an Apple app called Canadian Military History.

Apps for enjoying the long weekend

Parks Canada has a pair of handy apps for taking your party outdoors and eating well, which are available for Apple and Android devices and BlackBerrys. The Learn to Camp app has some tips for newbie campers on what to pack, how to start a fire, and checklists so you don't forget anything at home.

The Heritage Gourmet app has more than 70 recipes that represent traditional Canadian cuisine from across the country. You can search the app by ingredient, course, time period or region.

Your best bet for streaming some Canadian tunes is the free CBC Music app, available for Apple and Android devices and BlackBerrys, which is bound to be high-lighting homegrown content.

Made in Canada successes

Canadian success. There are plenty of great products Canadians have invented

CHRIS EDWARDS
For Metro

Lots of everyday products have a Canadian connection.

While we may not brag about them the way we do the telephone, or insulin, these gadgets come in pretty handy, pretty often. Here are a few:

Paint Roller

There's an art to painting a wall well, and most people never, ever, master it. And they never have to, thanks to Toronto's Norman Breaker, who invented the paint roller in 1940.

Ski-Doo

This quintessential Canadian contraption isn't as old as you might think: Bombardier only began manufacturing them in 1959. While snowmobiles had existed for decades, engine-sizes had limited them to larger, bulkier forms. Joseph-Armand Bombardier took advantage of newer, lightweight engines to build his Ski-Doo, and the results were duplicated widely.

Alkaline Battery

The power of Canadian ingenuity was on display back in 1955, when engineer Lewis Urry, of Pontypool, Ont., invented the first long-lasting alkaline battery. Yes, he was working in Cleveland at the time, but it still counts.

Garbage Bag

The modern garbage bag was developed independently, after the Second World War, by three Canadians: Harry Wasylyk, of Winnipeg;

Frank Plomp, of Toronto; and Larry Hanson, an employee at a Union Carbide plant in Lindsay, Ont.. Clearly, this was an invention worth keeping.

Snow Blower

It's still the best way to get snow off your driveway and onto your neighbour's lawn. The snow blower dates back to 1925 — the brainchild of one Arthur Sicard, of Saint-Leonard-de-Port-Maurice, QC. Sicard's truck-sized prototype must have been a source of immense satisfaction to him. He had come up with the concept at least as far back as 1894.

BlackBerry

Though the last few years have been shaky for its Waterloo, Ont.-based developer, Research In Motion (now known globally as "BlackBerry"), the BlackBerry remains a go-to device for millions of businesspeople, political types, and regular people, worldwide. The first BlackBerry, little more than an email-enabled pager, was released in 1999.

Caulking Gun

For adults, it's an essential home-repair tool. For kids, it's a viable substitute for a laser pistol. The caulking gun was invented by Theodore Witte, of Chilliwack, B.C., in 1894.

Instant Replay

One of the most significant features of modern sport debuted, modestly, on a 1955 television broadcast of Hockey Night in Canada, when producer George Retzlaff offered his viewers a kinescope recording of a goal. Today, instant replay is a part of all major televised sports.

Honourable mention: The Zipper

Did a Canadian invent the zipper? Many Canadians think so. And they're wrong. Engineer Gideon Sundback was born in Sweden, immigrating to the United States in 1905. In 1917, he was issued a patent for the zipper (then called a 'separable fastener'). One of the first places it was manufactured was St. Catharines, Ont., but that's as close to the glory as we get.

The laws behind the label

General impressions.
Claims are voluntary
by manufacturers

CHRIS EDWARDS
For Metro

Richard Cheung and Ingrid VanderElst are lawyers in the Intellectual Property and Life Science practice groups of Fasken Martineau DuMoulin LLP, a full-service international law firm.

They agreed to answer a few questions about the law behind "Made in Canada" logos.

If we see a "Made in Canada" logo on a product (or on its packaging), what facts can we assume about the product and how it was made?

R & I: For non-food products, it means that the product was substantially manufactured or produced in Canada, and that at least 51 per cent of the costs associated with the production or manufacture of the product were incurred here.

For food products, it means that the manufacturing or processing of the food substantially occurred in Canada. It doesn't tell you about the origin of the ingredients — they can be domestic or imported. For this reason, a qualifying statement must be added to the product label to note the origin of the ingredients contained in the food, for example, "Made in Canada from imported ingredients."

The absence of a claim does not mean that the product was not made in Canada. These claims are made voluntarily by manufacturers, and are not legally required.

What is the difference between "Made in Canada" and "Product of Canada"?

R & I: It depends on the type of product. For non-food products, "Product of Canada" means that virtually all (at least 98 per cent) of the costs associated with producing or manufacturing the product must have been incurred in Canada. For food products, "Product of Canada" means that virtually all of the major ingredients, components, processing, and labour used to make the food product are Canadian.

All that is required is that the label creates a general impression that the product was made in Canada. VEER visual elements, illustrations, or even the overall layout of a label. However, certain indicia of Canada, for example, the Canadian Coat of Arms and the Canadian flag, cannot be used without the permission of the Department of Canadian Heritage.

Who (besides the manufacturer) is responsible for ensuring that products carrying these logos live up to the Competition Bureau's Enforcement Guidelines?

R & I: The Competition Bureau (in particular, the Fair Business Branch) is responsible for enforcing the false or misleading advertising provisions of the Competition Act, which would encompass improper use of "Made in Canada" claims. The Competition Bureau typically would initiate investigations based on complaints from consumers or competitors. That said, the Bureau also monitors the news and press, and can take action based on such monitoring.

Are there any restrictions on what a "Made in Canada" logo must look like?

R & I: All that is required is that the label creates a general impression that the product was made in Canada. A "Made in Canada" claim can take the form of words,

A collection of Weleda products, including a box, a tube, and a bottle, arranged on a green background. The Weleda logo is visible in the top right corner.

Label does affect choices

Purchasing decisions.

The label resonates with some people

CHRIS EDWARDS
For Metro

Darren Dahl is a professor at the Sauder School of Business, and an associate editor of the Journal of Consumer Research. He studies consumer behaviour.

Do product labels like 'Made In Canada' really affect people's purchasing decisions?

DD: They affect some peoples' decisions. People who have a strong sense of national identity, and who look for that as a feature of the products they buy.

Most Canadians tend not to wear their patriotism on their sleeves. For these consumers, is the label actually a negative?

DD: I don't think so. I think they ignore it.

There is a concept called 'country of origin effect,' but it has more to do with peoples' attitudes to countries other than their own. Made in Germany might mean the product is well-engineered, for example.

What do you think 'Made in Canada' signifies to people?

DD: The Canada-brand means outdoors; it means nature. If you were from another country and you saw a brand of outdoor equipment with a Made in Canada logo, that would mean something. However, if the label was on a television set, which is not something a lot of people associate with Canada, it might not convince you.

Nationalism does influence some purchasing decisions. VEER

So really, what product the label is on matters as much as what the label says.

DD: Absolutely.

What other factors affect what consumers buy?

DD: Price is almost always one of the top concerns; then the quality, which is judged in different ways. Some concerns are fairly product-specific — when you're buying a car, for example, you'll be concerned about safety. Compared to these, the country the product was made in falls far down the list.

Are appeals to the national origin of a product an old tactic, or more recent?

DD: They're pretty old. But the effectiveness varies from country to country.

Is Canada is one of the countries where they're least effective?

DD: You would have to run the data, but my guess is that we're somewhere in the middle. We're not as passionate about this type of thing as the U.S. or some European countries, but for some people, it does resonate.

In a lot of ways our world is getting smaller — social media, in particular, breaks down a lot of boundaries. Do you think this sort of label will retain its effectiveness over the next 20 years?

DD: People want to be more international, so yes I think the power of that label is slowly deteriorating. But nationalism still flares up.

World changing ideas

Game changers. The telephone and the 24 hour clock are Canadian greats

CHRIS EDWARDS
For Metro

Time — there's never enough of it. Throughout history, humans have devised machines and concepts designed to save time — to make us faster, more efficient, better regulated. Some of those inventions have changed industries, and even the world. And some of those inventors have been Canadian.

Sandford Fleming was an engineer who immigrated to Ontario from Scotland in 1845.

He was already an eminent figure when, in 1876, he missed a train because its printed schedule listed p.m. rather than a.m.

Missing a train was frustrating, but the creative and ambitious Fleming saw opportunity. In 1879, at a meeting of the Royal Canadian Institute, he proposed a 24-hour clock, which would keep what he called Cosmic Time, and to which all local time zones would be subordinate.

He was not the only individual thinking this way: in 1870, the American educator, Charles Dowd, had lobbied Congress to divide the U.S. into four vertical time zones. His idea was rejected.

Fleming's proposals were also slow to catch on. However, he continued promoting them, as did other visionaries. On November 18, 1883, Canadian and American railroads adopted standard time.

The following year, Fleming played an important role in organizing the International Prime Meridian Conference, attended by representatives of 25 nations, all of which adopted Fleming's system. By 1929, most other major countries had accepted it too — making travel across countries, continents, and the globe, considerably easier.

As with most major inventions, the technologies that led to the telephone were conceived of and developed by many people around the world.

But it was Alexander Graham Bell, an immigrant to Canada, who was awarded the first patent for the electric telephone in 1876.

The challenge of transmitting speech was a personal one for Bell.

He came from a family of elocutionists, and both his mother and his wife suffered from hearing loss.

Preoccupied with this subject, along with many others, he once counted Helen Keller among his students.

Bell made his first successful demonstration of the telephone a few days after his patent was issued. He spoke the words, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want to see you," into the device, and his assistant, on the receiving end in another room, heard each one clearly.

Bell would go on to promote his invention widely, forming the Bell Telephone Company in 1877.

When he died at his home in Nova Scotia, in 1922, his most famous invention had already become one of the most important in human history — a simple, and ultimately indispensable, part of most peoples' personal and professional lives.

NBA draft. Cleveland's Canada love affair continues with pick of Bennett first overall Toronto's Anthony Bennett made Canadian basketball history Thursday, becoming the first player from north of the border to be selected first overall in the NBA draft.

The Cleveland Cavaliers

stunned the league by selecting the UNLV freshman forward, who has starred for Canada's junior team and was the Mountain West Conference player of the year.

"I didn't really have any idea who's going No. 1 or who was going No. 2," Bennett said. "I heard everything was up for grabs. But I'm just really happy, glad that I have this opportunity, and I just got to thank God for everything."

Tristan Thompson of Toronto was selected No. 4 by the Cavaliers in the 2011 draft, making him the highest Canadian draft pick before Thursday. Teen phenom Andrew Wiggins of Thornhill, Ont., is projected to go No. 1 in 2014.

There was suspense right until the end, either because the Cavs were unsure who they wanted or were trying to trade the pick. Most predictions had them taking one of the big men, Nerlens Noel or Alex Len.

The Lightning announced Thursday that they will buy out the final seven years of their captain's contract.

Lecavalier, a constant for the Lightning from when he was the No. 1 pick in 1998, will become an unrestricted free agent July 5, assuming he clears buyout waivers.

Lecavalier had $45 million US left on his contract and will be paid two-thirds of that over the next 14 years. The Lightning will get relief from the centre's $7.727-million salary-cap hit.

Coyotes' days in Glendale could be numbered

NHL. If Arizona city doesn't come through with arena deal, league can find plenty of other cities that will: Bettman

The NHL is threatening to relocate the Phoenix Coyotes if Glendale city council doesn't approve a new arena deal for the franchise by July 2.

That was commissioner Gary Bettman's strong stance Thursday after a board of governors meeting that included an update on the Coyotes' situation but not much else in the way of progress, as the league waits on the process in Arizona.

Renaissance Sports & Entertainment has agreed to buy the team, but everything is contingent on an arena management deal getting done.

"If the council doesn't approve it so that this transaction

The Coyotes salute their fans after their loss to the Avalanche in their home finale on April 26 in Glendale, Ariz. CHRISTIAN PETERSEN/GETTY IMAGES can close, I don't think the Coyotes will be playing there anymore," Bettman said.

Strengthening his position from the Stanley Cup final — the original target for the city of Glendale to finish the deal — Bettman explained that the NHL has "lots of options" if the Coyotes must relocate, even if that plan B hasn't yet been ironed out.

"I find it difficult to conceive of why, if the council turns this down, we would want to keep the team in Glendale any longer," Bettman said. "And so we will then, if they turn it down, have to deal with the possibilities and the options that will be available to us, and they are numerous."

Deputy commissioner Bill Daly didn't want to get into specific cities that could get the Coyotes if keeping the team in Glendale doesn't work out. Asked specifically about Seattle's Key Arena, he said it could house an NHL team. Asked about Quebec City being an option, Daly said, "I wouldn't rule it out."

"I think we tried to be clear that obviously there are a number of alternatives, and we have to decide which one is best for us in the short term," Daly said.

The short term would begin in 2013-14. Bettman and Daly confirmed there is enough time to move the Coyotes to another city without them playing a lame-duck season in Glendale.

Legendary hockey agent Don Baizley dead at 71

NHL agent Don Baizley of Winnipeg, whose client list included Teemu Selanne and Peter Forsberg, has died at the age of 71.

Baizley battled non-smoker's lung cancer, and his death brought an outpouring of support from the hockey community.

"Saddened to hear of Don Baizley's passing," fellow agent Allan Walsh wrote on Twitter. "He defined integrity and honor. Heaven just got one helluva sports agent."

Baizley represented a number of prominent stars, including Selanne, Forsberg, Joe Sakic, Paul Kariya, Theo Fleury and Saku Koivu. He was a mediator during the 2004-05 NHL lockout and was considered one of the most influential men in the sport.

The Winnipeg native was a member of the Manitoba Hockey Hall of Fame based on his 30 years of experience in the game that included two years as a player in the Manitoba Junior Hockey League.

Tough choices await GMs

Here's a look at the teams with the top-five picks in the 2013 NHL draft and what they could be considering when they're on the clock on Sunday:

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Photos by The Canadian Press/Getty Images

Avalanche

Several members of the Avalanche organization have been beating the drum about taking a forward with the first pick, bypassing defenceman and Denver kid Seth Jones. Centre Nathan MacKinnon, pictured, left-winger Jonathan Drouin and centre Aleksander Barkov head the list.

Colorado is already stacked at forward, but MacKinnon may be too good to pass up. If members of the Avs front office are truthful, he should be No. 1.

Panthers

Seeing Jones fall to them wouldn't be the worst thing in the world for the Panthers, who lack a top defenceman of the future. If Jones, pictured, goes No. 1, Florida would be foolish not to take one of the elite forwards.

Drouin, MacKinnon's teammate with the Halifax Mooseheads of the QMJHL, would seem to fit well.

Lightning

Unlike the Avalanche and Panthers, the Lightning don't need a star to build around. Steven Stamkos is doing just fine as the face of a franchise that includes Art Ross Trophy-winner Marty St. Louis and young defenceman Victor Hedman.

Tampa Bay has a strong pool of prospects and could use a young, talented forward who may be NHL ready. Barkov and Valeri Nichushkin would fit, but so would Drouin, pictured, if he slips to No. 3.

Predators

The Predators could use offence and a lot of it.

It's a draft full of playmakers and Nashville is especially in need after trading Martin Erat for Filip Forsberg. They're in a spot to take one of the forwards who drop between MacKinnon, Drouin,

Hurricanes

Of teams in the top five, the Hurricanes seem the most able to bounce back into the playoffs, which makes the No. 5 pick challenging for GM Jim Rutherford.

Carolina could try to take an NHL-ready player, like Nichushkin if he's left, trade the pick for immediate help or build depth. Justin Faulk and Ryan Murphy give Carolina strong defencemen, but Darnell Nurse, pictured, from Sault Ste. Marie, may be the best player available.

Messier leaves post with Rangers

Mark Messier is leaving the New York Rangers organization after being passed over as the new head coach.

Messier, who had been a special assistant to Rangers general manager Glen Sather, announced Thursday in a statement that he is resigning in order to "expand the game of hockey in the New York area."

He added New York's choice to hire head coach Alain Vigneault wasn't a factor in his departure.

"Although some will perceive this as a reaction to the coaching decision, nothing could be further from the truth," said Messier. "I completely respect the decision that was made and for all the reasons it was made. I harbour no hard feelings toward Glen or the Rangers." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

By all means, withdraw your support from a friend if they have let you down. It's not as if they weren't warned. You told them what would happen if they did not shape up.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Life is full of surprises and over the next couple of days you will be amazed by some of the things that happen. While others are too shocked to act, find ways to cash in.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Where business and financial matters are concerned, you can and you must look on the bright side today. If you let negative thoughts take hold, almost inevitably it will lead to negative events occurring.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

It might be better to clear the air today than allow a feud of some kind to drag on. Most likely there is no "right" or "wrong" involved, it's just that you see things in different ways. Can't you accept that?

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You don't have to conform to other people's standards just because they expect it of you. The only thing that matters is what you expect of yourself. Do what feels right and, if others don't like it, too bad.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

There are a few creative influences in your chart right now. Today, you need to decide what you're going to focus on. One thing done well is better than many things done poorly.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Make allowances for a friend's behaviour today. It is better to forgive and forget than make an issue of something you can't change. Besides, think of all the times they have forgiven you in the past.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The more you search for a solution to a problem, the further away it seems to get. Maybe you should take the hint and stop looking so hard. Everything will work out for the best when the time is right.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Watch out you don't spend more than you can afford today. If you do feel the need to splash out on something costly, make sure there is a money-back guarantee — just in case you change your mind.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You could be more emotional than usual over the next 24 hours. Hide your sensitive feelings from critics, who will play on them if they think it might damage your rep.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You may have every reason to be annoyed but you are also advised to keep your feelings to yourself as much as possible. Don't let your own behaviour become an issue.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Let the world know what your opinions are, even if they are largely at odds with the way most people view things. The masses are easily manipulated but you have never followed the herd. SALLY BROMPTON
